

Dress Code – Community Visitors

The following Dress Code applies to members of the Community or their agents who deliver or pick up children from School, who attend meetings, functions or events at the School or visit the School for any other reason.

Dress Code for Women and Girls

Women and girls should dress in a conservative manner commensurate with the traditions accepted in Chabad Lubavitch communities. Clothing, jewelry and makeup should not draw particular attention to the wearer nor emphasise physical features.

- Women and girls should wear a dress or a skirt and top. Trousers or leggings are not suitable, even when worn beneath a skirt.
  - o Clothes should not be clingy or tight fitting.
  - o They should have a high neckline.
  - o Sleeves must extend below the elbow so that elbows are not exposed.
  - o Hemlines should cover the knees, even when sitting.
  - o Skirts and dresses should not have splits.
  - o There should be no visible skin between skirt and top.
- Married practicing Jewish women are to have their hair completely covered at all times.
  - o No hair is to protrude beyond the head cover.
  - o Hair should not be visible through a tichel or sheitel.
- Non-practicing Jewish women and girls are asked to have their hair styled in a neat and modest manner.

Dress Code for Men and Boys

Men and Boys should dress in a conservative manner commensurate with the traditions of the Chabad Lubavitch community.

- Men and boys should wear a suit or trousers and a shirt or top.
  - o These should be of conservative or traditional cut and colour.

- o Trousers should be dark coloured, full length and not clingy.
- o Jeans are not appropriate.
- o Shirts worn by boys should be white and should cover the neckline.
- Footwear is to be dark coloured and fully enclosed, except during sporting activities, when sports shoes (runners) may be worn.
- Head Covering is required for practicing Jewish Men and boys and must be in a traditional style comprising a hat, cap or full size yarmulke.
- Boys of barmitzvah age or older are expected to wear a hat and jacket, in transit to and from school, and in all situations and events that are of a religious, formal or congregational nature (e.g. at synagogue, at a circumcision, at a wedding, at a Melaveh Malkah (the farewell to Sabbath)). Exceptions are occasions, events or activities that require informal / casual dress, e.g. excursions, hikes, camps, family outings and holidays. Even when informal/ casual dress is appropriate, clothing must conform with the laws of Tznius (modesty) and traditional Chabad Lubavitch standards.
